have the handicaps which he himself had overcome.

After primary and secondary education in New York schools, the young man was graduated from Georgetown University in 1894 and later, studied at Harvard and Oxford. On his return to the United States, he entered his father's publishing house and ultimately became editor of "Collier's Weekly." Upon the death of the elder Collier in April, 1909, he became head of the firm.

Many Times in Law Suits

In his vigorous direction of the magazine Mr. Collier became involved in one lawsuit after the other. Justice Deuel sued him for remarks made concerning the connection of the justice with "Town Topics" and "Fads and Fancies." The suit was aimed directly at Norman Hapgood, then editor of "Collier's," but Mr. Collier was equally interested. The suit resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff, and its aftermath was the prosecution of the editor of "Town Topics" for perjury.

To-day Is "Gas Mask" Day Governor Whitman announced yesterday that to-day is "Gas Mask Day," when the efforts of the country will be concentrated on obtaining fruit pits and nut shells for the chemical warfare service of the gas defence division. In his statement the Governor said that 1,000,000 pounds a day of such material are needed by the government.

Company for statements made concern-ing "Collier's Weekly" in some of the concern's advertisements. In 1912 he was involved in legal controversy with Norman Happood concerning the causes of the latter's retirement from the edi-torship of "Collier's."

Born in Lincoln's Cabin

In 1205. Mr. Collier became interested in the then neglected birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, in Larue County, & W. He bought the old cabin and the 110-acre farm on which it stood for $3,600, and announced his intention of giving it to the nation as soon as a suitable patriotic society should be formed for it. This organization being established, Mr. Collier transferred the deed to it, and, in addition, gave a large countribution for the erection of the granite memorial.

He was a keen lover of hazardous sports. Time and again he met with accidents on the polo field. Once his collarbone was fractured, and in a third encyc was almost torn from its socket.
